PRAISES FOR THE REVOLUTION AND ECONOMIC TRANSITION BOOK:

This book has been widely praised by some of the best scholars of the Iranian studies as the first and the most important book written on post-revolutionary Iranian economy. International Journal of Urban and Regional Research praised the book as "the first book-length analysis of economic developments in the Islamic Republic of Iran", a "tightly organized book" that offers a "wealth of detailed description, much of it previously unavailable", and then went on to note that "the richness of the book, however, lies not only in the impressive marshaling of data and sources. The author has also created a theoretical framework ... of a wider relevance, not least with regard to the changes under way in the former state socialist countries." The Middle East Journal praised the book as "outstanding," "the strongest of recent upsurge of books on the current Iranian economy," and "a rigorous empirical and theoretical analysis." Journal of Orient applauded the book as "a seminal publication" and "a pioneering" book on Iran. British Journal of Middle Eastern Studies praised the book as "the first book-length comprehensive analysis and evaluation of the economic performance of post-Revolutionary Iran" and a "pioneering", "excellent" and "exceptionally interesting book". The Middle East Report wrote that "Hooshang Amirahmadi's book stands out for its novelty, the new original data it presents, and its in depth analysis of the post-revolutionary conditions." Finally, Choice magazine endorsed it as "a standard reference book on Iran." Tens of other journals have also praised the book in similar terms.

7

These include Politica Internazionale (Italian), Etudes Internationales (French), Journal of Asian and African Studies, The International Journal of Middle East Studies, and Journal of Developing Sociology. It has also received favorable reviews in the Iranian press in Persian, a rather unusual recognition given the book's critical assessment of the achievements of the Islamic public.

PRAISES FOR MY OTHER BOOKS:

IRAN AND THE ARAB WORLD has been widely reviewed and admired by a variety of journals with differing perspectives. Foreign Affairs wrote: "An oft-neglected topic is competently handled". According to Middle East Insight: "given the topic's significance and the rarity, almost non-existence, of academic studies on the subject, this publication is more than welcome." Journal of Third World Studies praised the book as "a significant and timely contribution to the quite limited scholarly literature on Iran's relations with its Arab neighbors." Finally, International Affairs applauded the book as "a superb and timely book" and wrote: "not only is this study important, it is also profoundly interesting. It helps to explain why despite the growth in the influence of radical Islam throughout the Middle East and North Africa, the Iranian Revolution did not prove as easily exportable as its architects expected." In conclusion, the reviewer writes: "Some of us have become too accustomed to looking at the foreign policy of non-Western states in terms only of their relations with the West, and have failed to try to understand them in their own context. This excellent book should help to redress the balance." RECONSTRUCTION AND REGIONAL DIPLOMACY, according to Choice magazine, "offers many insights that set [it] apart from others on the subject." US-IRAN RELATIONS was praised by The Iranian Journal of International Affairs as "a truly valuable contribution to the literature on U.S.-Iran relations and it may provide the American foreign policymakers with a new perspective on Iran." THE UNITED STATES AND THE MIDDLE EAST was similarly praised by the Choice magazine: "This critical appraisal of US Middle East policies and some of the recommendations may be useful to the new administration. Excellent documentation, bibliography." Finally, URBAN DEVELOPMENT IN THE MUSLIM WORLD, according to Professional Geographer, is a welcome addition to the few publications on the dynamics of urban growth and development in the region" and recommends the book as a "text in urban geography, sociology, history, and planning courses focusing on Third or Muslim worlds."

UNIVERSITY AND COMMUNITY SERVICES:

In the last twenty some years, relations with Iran has been one of the most challenging foreign policy problem of the United States, with far-reaching consequences for America's regional and global leadership. As the core activity of my public service, in the last ten years, I have spent a good deal of time and effort in trying to foster better understanding and relations between the United States and Iran. My sustained contributions to this critically important public policy/international relation area are now universally and globally acknowledged. Such contributions include seven books and monographs, numerous conferences, roundtables and symposia, and extensive media coverage (interviews, op. eds., etc.).

In the last three years, five of such events have received worldwide attention and media coverage:

- 1) 1998 Conference with Secretary Cyrus Vance;
- 2) July 1999 Paris Debate between a former Iranian captor and an American captive;
- 3) March 2000 Conference with Secretary Madeline Albright and Iran's Ambassador to the United Nations (when the United States removed part of the sanctions on Iran);
- 4) August 2000 Reception at Metropolitan Museum where, after 22 years, Iran's Parliament Speaker and Deputies shook hands with their American counterparts including such distinguished figures as Senator Arlen Specter and Congressman Gary Ackerman; and
- 5) The 2000 Congressional Roundtables with official Iranian participation at the Capital Hill.

These events have been most effective in bringing the two governments closer on many issues and were extensively covered by the media throughout the world, including C-Span (full-day coverage of March 17 Conference), CNN, New York Times, Washington Post, USA Today, International Herald Tribune, and numerous other outlets.
